The little red stars mark required fields, i.e., you need a title, a body text, you need to decide a preferred presentation mode (oral, poster, or either!!!), and you need to have at least one author in the list box showing the authors. You do then need to press SAVE before the tick mark appears.

To define an author, you can fill in the three fields Name, Affiliation, and Country. Alternatively, if the author has a registered profile and thus the website knows the email address (and if you know it too), you can fill in the email address, press the TAB key and the system will fill in the author's details for you. Whatever route you chose, you then need to click "Add Author" to get your entry into the list box.

Assuming you have more than one author listed successfully, but none of them is defined as the presenter, you need to define one before you will get the tick mark. For that you click the radio button next to the presenter's name in the list box and then click "Presenter" next to the box. You can change this choice and also the sequence of authors as they should appear in the abstract book.
